THE WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS

ARIZONA

H. B. Warner in the Triangle-Ince feature, "The Beggar of Cawnpore," will be the offering at the Arizona tonight and tomorrow with the added attraction of a Keystone comedy, "His Bitter Pill." Warner is one of the most interesting screen actors due to his splendid technique which may be accounted for by his own analysis of screen acting. Mind, as well as body, he believes must reach the screen. "Thought reflection" is the term he applies to what he considers the highest art in motion picture acting and by use of which he has won success.

On Tuesday evening a problem play, "The Children in the House" will be presented. Interesting domestic situations are the basis for the powerful and dramatic story of whether or not a woman should cling to a faithless husband. Norma Talmadge plays the wife and others in the well chosen cast are Eugene Pallette, William Hackett, Jewel Carmen and the famous Triangle kiddies. A Keystone comedy, "The Lion and the Girl" is also booked for Tuesday.

Jack Barrmore in a crook play, "The Last Bridgroom" will be the Wednesday and Thursday offering. The Famous Players star is said to give a remarkable characterization in a role he has never before portrayed. It has more real thrills than any picture in which Barrmore has ever appeared, but is by no means lacking in humor, for which he has become justly celebrated. The picture was directed by James Kirkwood, with Katherine Harris, Ida Darling, June Dale, Hardie Kirkland, Edward Strugis and others of equal merit in support of Barrmore.

The popular Burton Holmes travel pictures will complete the program. Lovely Hazel Dawn in "The Saleslady" will be the feature Friday and Saturday. The Paramount picture has been given splendid reviews by the critics in the east both as to story, acting and photography. The Bray cartoons and Paramount pictographs are included in the end of the week offering.

COLUMBIA

It begins to look as if the summer at the Columbia portends the best values in pictures of the year. It is striving to bring new stuff to its screen and to avoid anything that might help to accentuate the slack of business that is supposed to come with the hot months. To date the management reports that it has to record an increase in every week since the warm spell attended, the past week being next to the largest since the Columbia turned exclusively to pictures. The week which starts today sees the enrollment of a fine line of pictures for the coming seven days. "Naked Heart" is the first offering and will be followed by Francis X. Bushman in a play that is said to be the best vehicle he has had since he went on the Metro program. It is styled "A Million a Minute," and is accredited with being as fast as its title. Following this will come the best Gold Rooster play that the Pathe people have sent to Phoenix. A play that will have a special appeal for all classes for it is founded upon a theme that has made and unmade kingdoms, "Woman's Jealousy." The Pathe people have done this work with an idea of conveying via the screen a lesson to the woman with the jealous tendency and at once to furnish entertainment of the highest order achieved in pictures. With the added value of these splendid pictures and the special attraction of the cool auditorium the Columbia bids fair to enjoy in the hot months the best patronage of its career. The cooling plant coupled with the music which is just now a factor that is enough in itself to commend the management in its effort to provide the very best that is obtainable for the client.

Evart Overton bids fair to become a popular idol of movie fans. He has the marcel wave and the soulful eyes that appeal especially to young girls who rave mainly about the good looking young actor. And thereby hangs a tale. Mr. Overton is perfectly sin-

At the Arizona Today and Tomorrow

Asher and Gale Henry will make the laughs for the crowd with "Those Female Hater."

On Monday the "Secret of the Submarine" will be run again together with a Vogue comedy, "Sammy's Scandalous Schemes," and a two reel (re-tair) drama, "The Terror of the Folds." Tuesday's program will be a complete Universal with some corking good pictures as a part of it. Some of the most popular stars in all motion pictures are seen on Universal days at the Plaza theater.

Wednesday sees again the "Mysteries of Myra." This is the fourth installment of the great psychic drama featuring Howard Estabrook and Jean Sothorn. On this day a full Universal program will be shown as well as a special set of war pictures made by the Hearst News service.

Thursday and Friday are Iron Claw days with the sixth installment of that serial featuring Pearl White and Creighton Hale. Not only is the acting splendid, but the story is one of both mystery and romance.

On both these days, there will be shown more of the popular Mutual programs. These are changed daily giving an opportunity for the patrons of the plaza to see short pictures made by the best artists in the profession full of bunch and interest.

Saturday will see the second of the International Film Weeklies now a regular feature of the Plaza and the regular installment of "Graft," the great political serial.

LAMARA

The Lamar Theater opens the week today and will present as its principal feature, House Peters and Barbara Tennant in "The Closed Road," the latest World Film feature directed and adapted for the screen by Maurice Tourneur. Mr. Peters will be remembered for his great work in "The Hand of Peril" and "The Great Divide," and this new vehicle affords him an even greater opportunity for powerful dramatic impersonation and the vivid portrayal he gives in this picture will long stand as the standard by which other dramatic actors will be judged.

The Tuesday and Wednesday program has not yet been decided upon but will be up to the usual high standard of the house. The William Fox features which have always been shown at the first of the week will, beginning with this week, be shown on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The first of these pictures will be "The Sins of Men." It is based upon a creed called "Myself," the doctrine of selfishness. The story is that of an old philosopher, who writes a treatise on what he is pleased to term the new faith "Myself." After many struggles he finds a market for his work, which because of its novelty and appeal, becomes one of the "best sellers." But the false teachings of the book bring much misery to the world and its terrible power for evil is finally brought home to the old man when he discovers that his own family has become imbued with the spirit of his teachings and are wrecking their own lives by living for themselves alone. Stuart Holmes and Dorothy Bernard are the co-stars.

AMUZU

Today at the Amuzu, Valli Valli, the gifted emotional actress will be seen in one of her masterpieces, "The Woman Pays." It is a new twist to the eternal triangle. This time a fourth dimension having been added to make the story take on a new angle. The title however is a misnomer for the woman does not pay. However, she skates on mighty thin ice at times and suffers a lot of heart ache which perhaps is the reason she has been made to pay the price, for after all, the heartaches here are the price. A young couple happily married are made the butt of much trouble by the designs of a pair who are not congenially mated. Valli Valli and her capable company interpret and bring to an entertaining conclusion this tale of domestic infidelity and misunderstanding. Of course the right triumphs as it always should in all good plays and the youngsters are re-united and live, it is supposed happily ever after. The Pathe News augments this particularly good feature play which is in itself a good value.

Neglected wives are promised a treat in "The Children in the House," newest Triangle drama. The husband who stays out nights is shot in the fifth reel and dies in time for a happy ending to the picture. This picture will be shown at the Arizona Tuesday.

A most important announcement of the week in film circles is that famous Eva Tanguay is at present busily engaged in the production of a motion picture, "Eva's Deal in Pork" is the title. The famous comedienne has selected for her introduction into film-
